Lynching Picture Stirs Senate Ire

Connally and Clark in Fiery Clash During Filibuster

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (INS)—Southern tempers flared in Senate anti-lynching bill debate today when Senator Connally (D., Texas), angrily demanded a placed showing pictures of a southern lynching be removed from the wall of the chamber.

The picture was hung a while after instructions of Senator Clark (D., Missouri), who immediately came to its defense. It portrayed two Negro victims in the so-called "showdown" lynchings in Mississippi.

"I object to the Senate being made a sewer for the garbage of the senator from Missouri," shouted the tall Texas in anger. "I demand that this picture be taken down from the walls of the Senate."

Clark replied coolly at first, but became incensed as Connally severely criticized his action.

"Ever since I've been in the Senate," Clark said, "I have been the custom when senators were debating to have pictures on the wall with matter pertaining to their contentions. I don't know of any rule that either give permission for such action or prohibit it."

"Why doesn't the senator from Missouri hang on the wall the pictures of the white folks who are trying to defend here?" shouted Connally. "I demand that this picture, this advertisement, come down."

"If the senator from Texas moves to have this placard taken down, I shall not object to it, but I don't know of any rule that such action will come under."

CONNALLY STOPS HIM

"Oh, I know all about the rules," Connally interrupted. "Now, when has the senator from Missouri acted without his consent?"

Clark attempted to answer, but Connally stopped him, saying that the Missouri was interrupting him, and that he could not do that under Senate rules without his consent.

"The senator from Missouri hasn't got my consent," Connally shouted. "I demand that the chair make him take his seat."

"There is a rule that the senator from Missouri cannot interrupt me when I am speaking," retorted Connally.

Pact to Cut Relief To Billion in 1938

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (INS)—With business quiet and budget balancing springing to the fore in Congress, a "hard understanding" among leaders in fiscal affairs to slash next year's relief fund to $1,000,000,000 was reported today.

Acting Chairman Charles McNary (D., Missouri), of the House Appropriations Committee, who reported the agreement, said definite state contributions to relief are included in the proposal.

Corn Marketing Hint Senate Job For Heiress' Mate

Quotas Voted In Farm Bill House Group Rejects Processing Tax for Benefit Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The House Agricultural Committee decided today to write marketing quotas for corn into the administration farm bill.

The committee's action today rejected suggestions that a processing tax be imposed on corn to raise funds for a expanded benefit payment program.

Chairman Jones (D.) of Texas said the committee also rejected a sub-committee's recommendation that a processing tax be levied on wheat. No decision was reached on the question of creating quotas for wheat.

The committee was reported to have voted 15 to 8 on the wheat provisions and 13 to 9 on corn.

COTTON IGNORED

Jones said the members did not discuss suggestions for a voluntary control program for cotton, nor compulsory regulation for tobacco.

The votes were taken in what one member described as a "very turbulent session."

One day ago the committee debated informally against both marketing quotas and processing taxes for wheat, cotton and rice.

Meanwhile, Chairman Smith announced the Senate Agricultural Committee would vote tomorrow on an "ever-normal grain" bill, expected to be ready for general Senate consideration Monday.

POPE HILL FAVORED

Members of the Senate committee expressed general favor with the Pope-McGill measure, which is patterned after the administration Secretary Waller and administration farm leaders.

The bill is expected to hold its costs within $500,000 already authorized for the conservation program under 1935 and to operate on a compulsory cotton control program.

Senator Bankhead (D.) of Alabama said southern senators were opposed to the cotton acreage control program, amendments offered by committee members, and changes suggested by the Department of Agriculture.

DITKOR ARE FEW

"We have just one or two little details to settle," he said.

Chairman McNary said the committee would consider tomorrow the general outline of the "ever-normal grain" program, amendments offered by committee members, and changes suggested by the Department of Agriculture.

The House committee's action on the wheat taxes, Jones said, "prevented any action by the committee." He declined to say whether his group would ask the House Ways and Means Committee, which normally originates revenue measures, to raise funds for a proposed wheat program.

Earth Shock Recorded

CARLIN, N. H., Nov. 19 (AP)—An earth shock which lasted about 10 seconds was felt here, but no serious damage was reported today.

Wage-Hour Law May Be Enacted This Session

Labor Leaders Act To Speed Action On Measure

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Prospects improved today for enacting wage-hour standards and fair control legislation for Government employees before Congress meets for the Christmas holidays.

A statement by John L. Lewis, leading the wage-hour bill "voluntarily" in principle, despite serious limitations, "encouraged the members to redouble efforts to get the bill before the house."

Lewis wrote Chairman Norton (D-N.J.) of the house labor committee that the bill's passage was "everything possible to bring about passage of the measure as soon as possible."

WILL SPEED BILL

Mr. Norton, who also has asked Secretary Perkins and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor for their views, continued his campaign to force the bill from the house rules committee.

A petition to accomplish this has been signed by more than half the House members.

Although some leaders remained dubious about the wage-hour bill, they agreed that both House and Senate probably could start debating the legislation on Monday.

The bill, which would set minimum wages and maximum hours, was not in final form, but Secretary William Green of the American Federation of Labor said he expected to mark the measure up for the Senate.

FILIBUSTER GOES ON

That would leave the final two days of the session for the Senate to reorganize the bill. Some Democratic leaders, however, predicted the Senate could pass the bill in a week.

Anti-lynching measures would take up the session.

Connelly Wants Brother's Name Off Wage Bill

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (INS)—If the controversial Black-Connelly wage-hour bill is approved by the House in its present form, Representative Lawrence Connelly (D., Massachusetts) is expected to ask the name of his late brother, William P. Connelly, removed as co-sponsor.

Connelly said today his brother, who died last year, had been chairman of the House labor committee, "would never have accepted the change," and "was made in the measure after it had passed the Senate."

More than 40 amendments were dropped by the House committee before the measure became a bill. In the House rules committee, where it now resides, the youthful Massachusetts representative who was elected to succeed his brother, introduced a bill which he said would offer as a substitute for the Black-Connelly measure should it reach the floor of the House.

The proposed substitute would declare a national 40-hour maximum week and a minimum 40 cents per hour wage, placing enforcement in the Department of Justice.

KENNERBUNK, Me., Nov. 19 (AP)—A man was caught today a man who snatched a handbag from Miss A. Louise Stone, tax collector here, yesterday in a store in Kennerbunk. The man was carrying two bags. The bag contained only $2 and a dozen oranges.

GEN. JOHNSON SAYS: War Amendment 'Generally O. K.'

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The President shall not wage warfare abroad without a declaration of war by Congress, Congress shall not declare war or commit money for service overseas without a referendum vote of all citizens except in case of invasion, military expedition or attack by a foreign military force against the United States, its territorial possessions, or their resident citizens, or of invasion or military expedition against any other North American or Caribbean country.

The preceding paragraph is the gist of Senator La Follette's proposal to amend the Constitution. With a few clarifications and minor exceptions, I think it is O. K.

The first sentence prohibiting the President from waging war abroad is very necessary. Presidents have done that in the past—recently in Haiti, Nicaragua and twice in Mexico.

Vera Cruz and in our prolonged military occupation of parts of China.

These instances were not of vital importance, but in view of the growth of a new non-strocity in the world—undoubtedly war—those presidential precedents need constitutional attention if we are to be assured against such deadly mistakes as the undeclared wars in China and Spain. We can't permit any President to create a situation of actual war and then leave the people no choice but to continue it in patriotism or self-defense, regardless of whether a majority clearly disapproved it in the beginning.

That could easily happen especially considering that Congress has completely abdicated to the President its power to declare economic war and the power Presidents have already assumed also to conduct military operations with no declaration of war. Restriction of these dangerous executive powers is vital.

The rest of the amendment confines the present Congressional powers to declare war or conscript men for overseas service, to purely defensive wars—except with popular consent by referendum. It is moderate and intelligent. In any military threat to North or Central America and the Caribbean countries, or to Guam in the Pacific, Congress could act alone exactly as at present. In other cases—such as offensive war in Europe or Asia—it could declare war in only after a popular referendum on both war and conscription for service overseas.

The usual argument against the war referendum is that it takes too long and that modern military situations change too fast—we may be destroyed while we are voting. The proposed amendment takes care of that. For defensive war, or if we are attacked, there is no change in the present system. It would only be in the case of a projected offensive war, or before we are attacked, and then only if carried on outside that part of the Western Hemisphere which lies approximately north of the Equator, that Congress could not act as at present. Couldn't we wait for a popular vote on that kind of overseas adventure?

Exemption of the Presidential restriction could be made to cover such cases as pursuit on a hot trail of guerrillas, like Villa, who attack our border countries, and for the traditional use of naval forces to protect commerce on the high seas and to rescue American lives in foreign catastrophes of peace and war.

The most important question is of the proposed restriction on present Congressional war powers in the Western Hemisphere south of the Equator. What would happen to the Monroe Doctrine, and to us in a sudden revolt by provinces of Brazil where German Nazis are now politically strong?

Suppose, as in Spain, Hitler supported them with military and naval strength in an undeclared war. Suppose that resulted in an unexpected threat to create a great German-Nazi empire comprising the whole present Republic of Brazil? Though not probable, that is distinctly possible and this is a Constitutional question. Should we not preserve the war powers of Congress, as they now are, to include the whole of the Western Hemisphere and not just its northern half?

A $100,000 limit would be set on the amount of the firm's and a $10,000 limit on the amount of the individual's income tax liability for the three years after the law took effect.

Corporations with assets and impaired capital would be helped similarly, he said.

Graves Says "Bribing Mayor" Was His Job; Ex-Mayor on Stand

for a copy of the testimony transcript.

Following the completing of testimony, arguments were begun by counsel before Judge Frederic W. Fiedler, hearing the trial without a jury.

First to deliver his argument was Wendell P. Murray, counsel for Curley, and in his summary Murray characterized Graves as a "liar, common thief and confessed perjurer."

"Can you conceive of James M. Curley and Dr. Santovincenzo stooping so low as to participate in such a deal?" asked the attorney. "If we were to assume—and I don't wish to do this—can you see any reason for two men such as Curley and Santovincenzo going to a man, a perfect stranger, and carrying negotiations through that would not such a small sum?"

'AT MERCY OF THIEF'

"I do not believe that these two gentlemen would throw themselves at the mercy of a common thief and confessed perjurer."

"Can you conceive of this corruption taking place in a crowded hotel lobby? Can you conceive of James M. Curley lacking common sense so much as to ask 'What is in it for me?'"

"Anyone on this green earth who understands the character, tactics and the temperament of James M. Curley knows that with every fibre of his body he would have resented such a proposition and the man who made it would have been knocked down. It has been brought out by former Corporation Counsel Sullivan that the settlement had been made by him and he stands full responsibility for it when he said on the stand, 'I take full responsibility for that settlement.'"

'JUST A BARE FACE'

"It is the testimony of this man Graves that is consistent, or is it that of my client, Curley?"

"Graves is nothing more than a confidence man. Using the vernacular adopted in recent years, he is nothing less than a baby-face confidence man."

"He is a self-confessed thief and perjuror. His reputation as a liar is not diminished. Graves in fact is the most brazen perjuror that I ever have heard of or ever have seen."

"He was put here on this stand to say what was demanded of him that he say."

Professor Frank L. Simpson of Boston University Law School, representing Santovincenzo, argued briefly, covering nearly the same ground as Attorney Murray.

Then Edward P. McGonigle, special counsel for the city, argued for the plaintiff, immediately asserting that the direct testimony for the city comes from a man who is a confessed perjurer.

PANSEY MY INVENTIONS

"A very considerable part of the arguments of the defendant," said McGonigle, "has been addressed to insinuations of improper conduct on the part of the corporation counsel and special counsel for the city of Boston."

"This is not an application for the revocation of the charter of the city of Boston. This is not an application for the removal of the mayor from office. This is an application for disciplinary action. Therefore, I shall not comment further on that side."

"We are before you charged

His Defense Ends

Former Mayor James M. Curley leaving Superior Court, where all testimony was concluded in the city's suit against him and Dr. Joseph Santovincenzo.

Q—Money was paid to you by St. Louis? A—For expenses.

Q—Well, at any rate, money was paid to you? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did you know there was to be corruption in settling this case? A—Yes.

Q—In your conversations with the Knott W. Brown Company was it stated, in substance, that the money was to be bribed? A—Who knows about it?

Q—The Knott made the suggestion that the money be bribed? A—No particular person.

Q—Did they all approve of the idea? A—They never disapproved.

FIXED AMOUNT OF BRIBE

Q—Was it left to you to make the bribe with the mayor? A—Yes.

Q—And did you get the sum? A—Yes.

Q—Where were the checks that Dr. Santovincenzo turned over to you cashed? A—In the Old Colonial Trust branch on Court street, opposite City Hall.

Q—On your description the mayor's office? A—It is in the old City Hall building on the first floor above the street and it is on the left-hand side.

Q—Did you know that Dr. Santovincenzo was part of the conspiracy? A—He had the money.

Q—In your mind did you know that transaction was stealing? A—It surely looks that way now.

IDENTITIES THREE CHECKS

Q—Knowing that Dr. Santovincenzo was being dishonest, did you see that the money turned over by you to the doctor was paid the mayor? A—No.

Q—Did you go to the mayor's office from the bank? A—No.

Attorney Murray here produced three checks, made out to Frederick H. Graves. One was the $30,000 check, the $20,000 and the third for $15,000.

Q—Did you endorse these three checks? A—Yes, the $15,000 check I received for my services. The $20,000 check was returned over to my company and the $30,000 was cashed and turned over to Dr. Santovincenzo.

Q—So far as the $15,000 check was concerned, did you have anything in writing to show that you had anything to do other than to give it to Dr. Santovincenzo? A—No.

Q—His own claim being made by you or by your company upon Dr. Santovincenzo after you received the $30,000? A—No.

KNOW OF G-MEN PROBE

Q—At some time you knew that federal agents were investigating your case? A—Yes.

Q—And you knew that that investigation by the federal agents was to determine what the Brown Company had actually received on the deal? A—I don't know.

Q—Didn't you also learn that the federal agents were attempting to determine what became of the money? A—I don't know until I was asked to make an affidavit.

Q—Where was that affidavit made? A—It was in Dallas, Tex., last summer.

Q—About what time was it? A—I can't remember the exact date. It was after I had made the affidavit in St. Louis.

COHEN BACK ON STAND

Q—Was there any relationship of these two events? A—Not that I know of.

Q—Was not the reason for the affidavit to protect someone? A—Not that I know of.

Professor Simpson, who Graves was summoned to the stand here, called Attorney George J. Cohen to the stand. Cohen, who occupies an office in the same suite with Dr. Santovincenzo, who is an attorney as well as a doctor.

Cohen was questioned by Professor Simpson. Santovincenzo must set with reference to a tale that Cohen, Santovincenzo and Dr. Ben used had with Bank Trust George Sewell in the Old Colony Trust Company. Sewell testified yesterday that he cashed the $30,000 check for Santovincenzo.

Cohen testified today that Santovincenzo said to Sewell at the bank:

"I have come down to ask you some questions about the $30,000 check in the city suit."

Sewell, according to the witness' story:

"Yes, I remember cashing it."

Q—You remember the circumstances? Sewell was asked by Santovincenzo, according to Cohen.

"Yes, I do," Cohen said. Sewell replied, "You came down here with a man you said was Frederick H. Graves. I don't know if he was Frederick H. Graves. He said he was. I asked him how he wanted the money and he said in large bills. The money was paid to Graves."

Then, according to Cohen's testimony, Cohen came over and remarked:

"Of course, the money would always have to be paid to the payee, because it is a bank rule."

Then, when Cohen told the former Mayor Curley was created the final witness by Attorney Murray, who questioned the three-time mayor.

Q—You were here yesterday? A—Yes.

Q—Did you see the witness Graves on the witness stand? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did he ever introduce you in Washington to a man named Ralph M. Graves in the city suit? A—I never saw him before.

Q—Did he ever introduce you to anybody? A—No, sir, never.

Contractor Tells Of Durant Offer

Newton Man Testifies He Was Not Qualified to Become President

Although he was not qualified to hold the position, Frank L. Wilcox of West Newton, today testified before the securities division of the Department of Public Utilities that he was offered the presidency of Durant Campaigns, Inc.

Details of a proposed $400,000 bond issue by Durant Campaigns, Inc., financing affiliate of Durant Inc., a women's organization, to finance construction of a 15-story building in the Back Bay is under investigation by the securities division.

LAUGHS PROVIDED

The hearing which opened yesterday in the Public Works Building, Nathan street, before John H. Jackson, director of the securities division, was continually thrown into an uproar of laughter during the testimony of Miss Hildegarde Anderson of Melrose, president of Durant Campaigns, Inc., who followed Wilcox to the stand.

She declared that she "never saw" a bond and at one time in her testimony she said that the invoice against Gracie Garbo, was jokingly mentioned.

During his testimony Wilcox said he was a registered salesman for Durant Campaigns, Inc., and also a building contractor.

TELS OF OFFER

Wilcox testified that Arthur F. Gibson, who resigned as treasurer of the fund-raising organization, told him he would be "acceptable to the agencies" if he was "you were given in the business."

Asked what Gibson's reply was, Wilcox testified that he had no answer.

"I'm a building contractor," he said.

Asked Durant Backus:

"Do you think you're qualified with no experience as a bond salesman to head a $400,000 bond campaign?"

"I am not qualified," was the answer.

Asked if he declined the offer Wilcox said:

"I declined to look into it. The very words I used to Gibson were 'I'm not going to put anything in my lap.'"

He testified that Gibson knew he was inexperienced and, quoted by Murray if he was willing to be "used" by the securities division at the present time, said:

"Not under the present circumstances."

Asked if he would continue as a salesman for Durant:

"The reached the conclusion it is not in my line of business."

'NEVER SAW BOND'

Murray asked Miss Anderson:

"You were planning to sell bonds, did you ever see a bond?"

"No, I never saw one. I've seen a stock certificate."

Q—Did you try to sell any bonds?

A—I approached one man and he said to come back in December.

Q—Did you try to sell any bonds?

A—I didn't have to talk to him. He said to come back in December.

Boy Risks Gun Death To Aid Dad

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—A 12-year-old boy risked a hammer swinging boy of his father, George Duran, by having averaged the shooting of his father during a family fight last night.

George's father, 42, superintendent of an upper West Side apartment house was in a police hospital with two bullet wounds.

Andrew Kay, 21, a brother-in-law of the older Duran, was in a police cell causing hammer blows on the face and was charged with felonious assault.

Police said Kay called at the Duran apartment to demand possible reconciliation between the father and son.

When the boy returned from the father with the hammer he found his father wounded and sprawled on the floor. Without hesitation he leaped into such a furious assault on Kay that the latter fled from the house only to be arrested shortly afterward.

Rewards Spur Hunt for Labor Head Killers

$11,000 for Capture Of Slayers; Union Ranks Sifted

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 10 (AP)—Spurred by rewards of $11,000 and reports that four other labor leaders were marked for death, investigators delved into union activities today for a solution to the ambush slaying of Patrick J. Corcoran.

Police questioned two Chicago men at an undisclosed place in North Minneapolis. The men were described as the two with whom Patrick Corcoran, Jr., said his father fought an union headquarters early Sunday.

Major George E. Leneh threw all the facilities of the police department into the search for the slayers who killed the 35-year-old A. F. of L. unionist with a pistol bullet near his home Wednesday night.

Corcoran was chairman of the Minneapolis District Drivers council, covering five states, and was active in several A. F. of L. unions here.

Alphonse A. G. Rastis said he had heard reports that Corcoran and three organizers of the General Drivers Union were on the death list, headed by Corcoran. He said they were Bill Brown, and the three thus included, Mike Vincent and Grant.

The Joint Truckers' Council, with which Corcoran was associated, posted a $10,000 reward. A man who told Corcoran, newspaper columnist, more than a week ago that "a Minneapolis labor leader would be taken for a ride within two weeks," was sought for questioning. The "tip" was published November 3.

Probe Freightier Load Charges

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 10 (AP)—Underwriters are investigating charges of arson that the Great freighter Tenny Chandra, which sank off Cape Hatteras Saturday with loss of eight lives, was improperly loaded with scrap iron.

Attorneys representing the London Salvage Company, which insured the vessel for $100,000, yesterday to Norfolk City, N. C., a ship agent for the vessel, H. J. Berman. They planned to return here today to resume questioning survivors.

One Joseph Currie, who said the Tenny Chandra struck bottom in the Norfolk City harbor and was sinking, arrived Saturday after he pushed out into a storm at sea.

Norfolk newspapers quoted James Kelly and Joseph Lantz, British examiners, as saying that it was too early because the smaller scrap was loaded at Norfolk and heavier pieces packed on top at Morehead City.

Hospital Aides Held in Robbery

A host to their victim that they were Harvard graduates studying at Boston State Hospital, Mattapan, led police to that institution where three attendants were arrested. It was revealed by a police lineup today.

Two of the men were taken into custody last night and the other today on suspicion of robbery while armed. They face arraignment in West Roxbury court today.

They were picked out of the crowd by Ernest M. Hough, 27, Chamber street, West End. Hough said the trio stripped him of his clothing.

Hough reported to police he knew the men in a South End cafe and that they took him to their car to the American Legion highway, Mattapan, where they took him, robbed him of $10 and left him lying on the road in only the clothing and shirt.

The men, police said, admitted taking Hough to Mattapan and declared they were "too drunk to remember what happened."

LEE KENDRIGAN

ST. GEORGE, Utah, Nov. 10 (AP)—A headline body, rumored from an old well into which it was cast nearly three years ago, mysteriously verified today the strange confessions of two men of a killing disclosed by neighborhood gossip.

The body was identified by its features, sweater, belt and shoes, said Sheriff Antonio B. Prince, as that of Spanish miner, who disappeared March 17, 1935.

First degree murder charges were filed against Charles Bushcraft, 25, who told Prince he killed Malen in a ranch fight and later married the man's widow, and George Schuler, 25, her brother, who said he helped "dispose" of the body.

Both men said they kept the secret from their wives—Schuler had acquired three through divorce since the slaying—when they surprised the killing had been disclosed. The sheriff said, however, he had been investigating for a year after the men had dropped significant hints.

Mrs. Bushcraft and the third Mrs. Schuler assured their husbands they would "stand by them."

Prince said Malen's head "apparently was twisted from the body during its 110-foot plunge" into the well.

Well, Don't Mention Bowling to Hickey

CHICAGO, Nov. 10 (AP)—John Hickey inserted a swollen thumb and two fingers into a 45-pound bowling ball, threw a calculating prize at the distant target, took three or four steps and let fly.

The ball didn't get away from the swollen thumb. It described a wide arc and thudded against Hickey's right eye.

His fellow teamates separated the unconscious Hickey from the ball, then carried him to a hospital where a physician closed the wound with five stitches and presented a bill for $10.

The size of the wound was worse than the sound and Hickey replied proportionately.

The arrival of three squads of police in response to a call from a frightened nurse had a calming influence on everyone. Hickey collected $10 from his friends and paid the bill.

Today Hickey listed bowling among the more dangerous sports.

Two Ashmont girls report to police that they had a terrific battle with two men in Ashmont street. Lee Kendrigan, 15, and Frances Riley, 15, the men grabbed them and pulled them into a house. The shouts of the infuriated girls caused their assailants to flee before help could be summoned.

French Lottery Fake Hit Here

Soundings the cry, "Fake" Boston postoffice authorities today mapped a vicious campaign to roll back a homecoming fund of tickets for the so-called "Third Monte Carlo" official sweepstakes.

The lottery, to be drawn at New France, March 6, 1938, according to pamphlets edged by postal inspectors, was condemned as an other elaborate scheme to extort thousands of dollars from the pockets of gullible Americans.

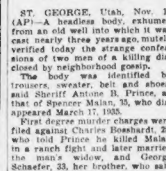

Chief Post Office Inspector John H. Breen announced a heavy blow already been struck against the operators of the lottery when he said that the Boston post office had confiscated 2500 tickets that had been mailed to prospective customers in the Boston postal district.

He said that investigators are hunting persons responsible for mailing the tickets. The sweepstakes mailing list he revealed was apparently copied from telephone directories.

Breen issued a direct appeal to the public to refrain from buying the tickets.

Swift Is Silent To Criticism on Freed Driver

Minister in Address To B. U. Students Scores Ruling

Judge John E. Swift today maintained silence in the face of rapidly mounting criticism by lawyers, clergymen and civic officials of his verdict acquitting a drunken hitman driver of manslaughter after his car had killed a Lowell man and his infant son.

Heading the condemnation was a vigorous statement by the Rev. Carl Heath Rapp of the Mount Vernon Church, who characterized the dismissal of the charges against Joseph P. Curry, 41, as a "brain washed mistake."

The minister, speaking at a Boston University student rally, declared:

"BRAIN WASHED MISTAKE"

"I am no lawyer, but the son of a lawyer, but I take issue with Judge Swift when he solemnly declares that a drunken driver who kills a young father and his two-year-old son is innocent of manslaughter."

"That was not only a jury-washed mistake, but a brain-washed mistake, putting a premium on driving when you are drunk. The drunker you are, the less guilty you are when your car runs amok. If you are sober, you are punished."

His attack was made 24 hours after Judge Swift freed Curry on the death counts while finding him guilty of drunkenness, drunken driving and driving on an accident.

Curry was arrested August 7 after his automobile struck and killed Henry Bowman, 20, and his 2-year-old son, Mrs. Bowman was hit and an arm severely injured that one is still under the care of a physician.

JUDGES LOGIC

Addressing the general stream of criticism was a statement by Professor Sam B. Warner of Harvard Law School, who had reported:

"The logic of Judge Swift's decision would seem to be that if one must drive recklessly, he all must become completely brain-washed so as to avoid danger of conviction of manslaughter."

Definite action arising from the incident was taken when Representative Edward D. Sawyer of Wake, a clergyman, filed a bill for the Legislature to delete the head measure of manslaughter.

Another who uttered an appeal to the Legislature was United States Commissioner Richard R. Walsh, president of the Lowell Bar Association, who asserted:

SURPRISED BY VERDICT

"I have always thought that drunkenness was no excuse for one's actions. What and for was surprised by the verdict."

Meanwhile District Attorney Warren L. Bishop and Assistant Prosecutor Julian Wolfson, who handled the case for the state, declined to comment on the decision.

Battling 3-Alarm North End Fire

Firemen battled for hours this morning to subdue flames in a box factory at 122 Fulton street, North End. Thousands of boxes and crates were burned, but the fire was kept from spreading.

North End Warehouse Swept by 3-Alarm Fire

Frank A. Goodwin announced today that the registrar declared that 11,000 licenses were taken away from persons during the same period of spreading and "renewal" operating as to endanger the lives of the public.

Leading the cooperation of the police throughout the state, particularly the state police, Registrar Goodwin said.

"It is apparent now, with 11 more days to go before the end of the statistical year, that there will be less killed this year than any since 1935."

"This is encouraging when it has in mind that there is a national increase of from 15 to 20 per cent."

Maine Jury Disagrees On Topsy Driving Case

AUBURN, Me., Nov. 19 (AP)—A jury which had disagreed in a drunken driving case the state has built on the testimony of five policemen and five police men was told by Superior Court Judge Albert J. Beland.

"A conviction cannot be had in a case of this kind, it seems to me that there is no law in this case, no attention to drunken drivers."

Death Highway To Be Rebuilt

Two Massachusetts Legislators today planned the dangerous condition of the Lawrence-Haverhill highway for the death of a five-year-old child in an automobile accident.

Stirred by the fatal tragedy, Representative Louis J. Reardon, of Carlisle, and Senator William P. Cahill, of Lowell, introduced a bill for the reconstruction of the road.

The representative planned the reconstruction of the road, personally before Public Works Commissioner William P. Cahill, of Lowell, and the bill for the reconstruction of the road.

Promising that 37 miles of highway from Lawrence to the Haverhill line will be constructed as soon as the Legislature meets, the federal government had approved $200,000 towards the $400,000 total.

The commissioner said the improved road will have four lanes with sidewalks and will be surfaced with non-skid bituminous concrete.

'Love of Women' Gets Superb Treatment By Sterling Cost

By GEORGE HOLLAND

NO TORY APPOINTMENTS are ready for release at this time, but Tommy Donahue and Dr. George Lynde Gately will have the administration in back of their respective ambitions. . . .

Speaking of the Simpsons, news of Wally's first husband and his intentions to wed Mary Kirk Ruffray were printed for the first time in the world in this space a year ago. . . .

And the other Simpson, the tough boy who moved down the two Newton officers, was ready to go to his back and laugh in his face. . . . He had been drawing $50 a week for work on a gravity feed oil burner patent. . . . It was raining what Simpson called "perfection" when he was apprehended. . . . They say he will devote his time until April in finishing his book, "A Fine Line" being brought to bear against the 200-odd gay spots where music of one sort or another is employed to attract customers of a Sunday night. . . .

Reports quote the Boston licensing board as acting on an opinion handed down by Attorney-General Paul Dever. . . . Attorney-General Dever will object to day or tomorrow about using his name so objectively. . . .

A classically beautiful Bergdorf-Goodman negligee of almond green made a new woman, and a very seductive one, of playwright Vere Malcolm on the Wilbur stage last night, and a hostful of most first-nighters leaned back more comfortably.

The awakening occurred during the third act of Love of Women, a new Shubert-produced English play, which was introduced by the cast headed by Hugh Sinclair, Valerie Taylor, and motion-picture star, Heather Angel.

The Stuart play concerns two young women, who have successfully elaborated in the writing of the play and whose life is the part of some Radcliffe Hall suspense on the road of the town on a picture of one.

The two girls, a picture of one in rural England. Though they have masculine virtues, they find them romantically interesting. . . .

Robert Benchley's Chatter

Features Film at Keith's

Bob Benchley's feature hitting is the most entertaining feature of "Love, Love and Learn," the Rosalind Russell-Robert Montgomery co-starring at the Keith-Memorial this week which very oddly combines slapstick and drama. "Madame X," with that excellent actress Gladys George, in the title role, is the comedy picture.

"Love, Love and Learn" promises to be a funny in the Loew's State and Orpheum. . . .

And then, just when you're about to settle down to life with the Montgomery, the picture changes to a picture of one. . . .

Aherne's 'Garrick' Clever Performance

The legendary David Garrick, eighteenth century dandy and actor, is being played by the Warner Brothers in "The Garrick" which has a handsome and snubbing interpreter in Brian Aherne.

Don't let the knowledge that this is a costume play keep you away from the Warner Brothers. . . .

It is as modern as tomorrow and as fresh as paint, that the picture production, Mervyn LeRoy, for that. . . .

There is a lovely vitality about these bygone days in the theater, a bewitching picturesqueness that Brian Aherne's Garrick and James Whitely's dandy have nothing in common. . . .

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Sally Rand had a trying week in Boston—except that business was very good. . . .

One invitation to address a philanthropic gathering was withdrawn when the wife of the Mr. Briggs refused to attend if Sally was present. . . .

Then she had an experience with a Boston post-boy that taxed her patience. . . .

To top it all, Sally was guest of honor at a joyous party fostered by a prominent group affiliated with the stage, and the husband of one of the hostesses started making pateroses. . . .

Kay Francis Turns Comedienne at Last

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 18.—Kay Francis is the latest dramatic star to turn comedian and this news for Kay has always played a dramatic role with poets and comic poets.

But some comedians who have been in the business for years have not been able to make a name for themselves. Kay Francis, however, has been in the business for years and has been able to make a name for herself. She has been in the business for years and has been able to make a name for herself.

Alexander Graham Bell is the inventor of what some people don't know and others believe, the telephone. It is not in the front of his life as a scientist, but as a man of letters and with none other than the youthful Thomas Edison playing the inventor. In fact you can even see him with the head of the telephone in the background. He is not in the front of his life as a scientist, but as a man of letters and with none other than the youthful Thomas Edison playing the inventor.

They Earn Plenty, But Spend Little

JANE WITHERS

Shirley Temple, who earns more than $100,000 a year in the films, gets all of—imagine it!—$3 a week to spend. Of course Shirley doesn't "spend the money" on herself. She treats her stand-in dailies. Jane Withers, film's "bad girl," doesn't make nearly as much as Shirley, but she tops all the wee stars in allowance—with the grand total of $5 weekly. She's saving $5 of this for Christmas presents.

DO GOLFERS APPRECIATE CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCO?

It means a lot that famous golfers—like Gene Sarazen, Helen Hicks, Tony Manero, Lawson Little, and Ralph Guldahl—agree in their preference for one cigarette—Camel. They have found—as you'll find too—that the costlier tobaccos in Camels do place this great cigarette in a class apart. Listen to Ralph Guldahl, National Open Champion: "The fact that I've stuck to Camels for 10 years speaks for itself," he says. "I smoke lots of Camels and I've never known them to jangle my nerves. That partly explains why so many golfers are loyal Camel smokers."

And not only golfers, but people in all walks of life—millions of Americans—prefer Camels day after day after day, making them the LARGEST-SELLING cigarette in America... or the world.

SALESGIRL Elsie Schumacher says: "When the guys get me 'smoke out,' it's me for a Camel. I'm glad as any athlete that Camels don't get on my nerves."

SPORTS WRITER S. Cammer: "I know many great athletes intimately. It's impressive how many of them agree on Camels. I'm glad as any athlete that Camels don't get on my nerves."

BANK TELLER John McMahon: "With Camels I get a lot of amusing. I'm handing money by the thousands. Jangled nerves just don't fit in that kind of work. So it's Camels for me."

WATCHMAKER I. C. Conklyn: "I know many great athletes intimately. It's impressive how many of them agree on Camels. I'm glad as any athlete that Camels don't get on my nerves."

DRAFTSMAN R. T. Miller: "I smoke steadily. Camels never tire my taste. I often feel good up during long hours before the drawing board. Camels give me a lift when I feel I need it."

AUTO MECHANIC Al Patterson: "In the garage business you catch your meals on the run. Camels seem to smooth the way for good digestion. The Mrs. smokes Camels too because they hit the spot."

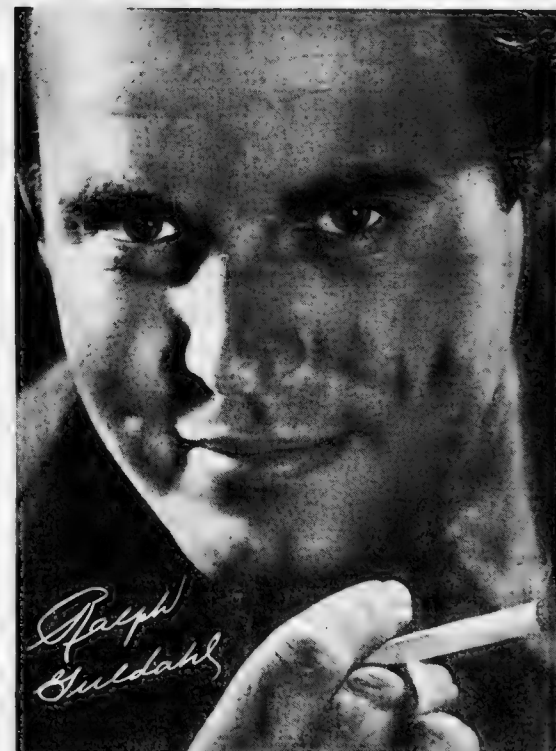

CHIEF SIGNALMAN on the N. Y. Canal, John Geraghty: "You don't have to be a railroad man to know that speed and safety call for healthy nerves. Do Camels jangle my nerves? No sir!"

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

One of the most tragic news items I have seen in a long time comes to my attention in an Associated Press dispatch from Jerseyville, Ill., wherever that is. It is but a smidgen of a story, but it hurts all the same.

No wife was within hearing distance of the husband's death. The husband, however, was not alone. He was surrounded by a number of his friends and relatives. They were all there when he died. They were all there when he was buried. They were all there when he was buried.

Robert E. Rogers, author, and the editors cannot feel the "tragedy" of the poor man who dies alone. They cannot feel the "tragedy" of the poor man who dies alone. They cannot feel the "tragedy" of the poor man who dies alone.

Smell's the Thing I presume the reason a person smells is because of the bacteria which are on his skin. The bacteria are on his skin because of the bacteria which are on his skin.

Other Real Eats Maybe the trouble isn't entirely due to smell. Maybe there's a taste to it, or even the texture. Mother always made beef a small portion of brown corned beef hash, while Father was dead at his larger dose of the meat as ported up with hash. It was a gorgeous food and looked like a pile of gold. Maybe the reason which a popular, red-tailed trout is so good is because of the taste. Or it could be the texture. Or it could be the texture.

Belly-Filling Food You will note that all the foods on the Japanese menu were named after a part of the body. Perhaps a better food for them would be named after a part of the body. Perhaps a better food for them would be named after a part of the body.

Worcester WPA Men Hunt Lost Manholes

Comes queer news from Worcester, where a group of WPA workers has been engaged for weeks in hunting down lost manholes. In the course of street changes, manholes have a trick of disappearing. Some of those uncovered were buried under two or three feet of cement. Once found, the manhole is left undisturbed. It is simply mapped, and if the engineers ever need it, they'll go to the maps and find out where it is located. How the WPA boys find the manholes in the first place, is something you'll have to find out for yourself!

Smell's the Thing I presume the reason a person smells is because of the bacteria which are on his skin. The bacteria are on his skin because of the bacteria which are on his skin.

Other Real Eats Maybe the trouble isn't entirely due to smell. Maybe there's a taste to it, or even the texture. Mother always made beef a small portion of brown corned beef hash, while Father was dead at his larger dose of the meat as ported up with hash. It was a gorgeous food and looked like a pile of gold. Maybe the reason which a popular, red-tailed trout is so good is because of the taste. Or it could be the texture. Or it could be the texture.

SNOW, RAIN THREATEN HARVARD'S CHANCES

Clint Frank Bids Farewell and Passes Into Yale's Limbo

I AM THINKING ABOUT YALE'S CLINT Frank. So is Harvard. But I am thinking of Clint Frank because he is the most publicized college football player since Larry Kelley, and before that Red Grange, and because tomorrow night his show will be over and there will be little use for his peculiar gifts.

The papers are publishing his life's story next to the Congressional news. His image dominates the Sunday photo sections. He is touted as tops wherever football's Vox Popa get together. The sport page authors bless him as a combination Winged Mercury, hurler of Jovian thunderbolts, a Rocky Mountain goat and a cannon shot.

It is a heavy load of expectancy for a 22-year-old. For tomorrow he is supposed to perform a duplicate set of miracles to match the miracles he has already performed. And he must do it. Harvard remembers too well how Larry Kelley, under an equal load of expectancy did it last year.

Frank's record is virtually the Yale record for 1937. Have a look. Against...

Maine—Scored one touchdown and fired two scoring passes to Hootley and Rafferty.

Pennsylvania—Scored one touchdown and a 55-yard run to set up another. One scoring fling to Wilson.

Army—One scoring pass to Miller and aided in forcing a safety.

Cornell—One touchdown and a 68-yard run.

Dartmouth—One scoring pass to Hoesberg and aid in forcing a safety.

Brown—Three touchdowns.

Princeton—Four touchdowns, two of them on 79 and 53-yard runs.

So Frank has earned his pedestal in Yale fame by accounting for 94 of his team's 131 points, which seems to fatten him up for a final flourish or an equally final flop. The width between Harvard's success or failure tomorrow seems to be the exact width between Frank's shoulders.

Birth of a Hero

LET'S GET MORBID. TOMORROW AT sundown Frank will strip off his canvas knickers, unslung his leather shoulder harness and his paper mache hip pads and leave them in a sweaty puddle on the field house floor. He will soap over the dusty concrete to the shower room and soaps, rinse and dry himself. The Yale physician may pain his bruises with iodine or tape a sprain with medical plaster. Then he will dress and go into the autumn evening and pass the silhouetted stadium steelwork—through with college football forever.

At that moment a strange thing will happen, unaware to Clint Frank. For instead of one person, whole and indivisible he will become two—the real Clint Frank, of course, and a legend. The real Clint will go on into the night and join his friends, graduate next June and enter business, grow gradually gray, accumulate wrinkles and become fat or thin, a success or a failure. But the mythical Clint will remain young to play folklore parts for the incoming Yale generations and haunt graduate I remember-when gatherings. Unlike the real Clint, the legendary Clint will never grow a day older in the memory of his mates but will stay in their minds as a shock-headed-meaty youth with a firm chin and a squinty eye who had a rare knack for slipping a tackler or flucking touchdown passes. For a memory never grows up with the swift roll of the years. It remains forever green and 20 years hence when the present Yale horde have grown gray and pious they will still look here in the terms of today's boyhood—still a young, bubbling and dynamic as he romped through the college scene.

More Than a Football Game

THE HARVARD-YALE OCCASIONS ARE NOT just football. They are sentimental milestones in student and alumni life which go echoing down the ages to become something glorious in a life of worry, thwart and exasperation. So that the annual show sets the old jokers to brooding on the inescapable advance of their age, the twinges of their infirmities and the ephemeralty of youth, and bows down their hearts with such a weight of woes that their souls moan for something to quiet their sufferings. It is a sweet sorrow, however, and they look forward to it as we may know from the fact that they forget not to pat their hips for their pants in gathering up their robes, muffers and mittens along about noontime on the day of days.

Nor is it just the frenzy of the moment which causes the old Harvard and Yale coddler to squeeze rusty yells from his larynx in perfect time to the hop of the cheer leaders. For a brief spell, while the illusive lustre of their youth lingers down there in front with their locks brown and curly, leavelling their whickerless chins and feeling the sublime innocence of life. The athletes in their crimson and cobalt jerseys may be named Struck and Kevorkian and Hoesberg and Frank, but the old jokers see them with silver hair turned back, as the Shervins and Coys and Verweches and Mahans of yesterday.

The golden glow of the late sun as it strikes the turrets of the Stadium is again the old '88 sun and the young and luscious football girls are those of an earlier vintage, creatures who by now are doubtless grown wider, older and settled down to domesticity and sad about it, or not settled down and sad about that.

L'envoi

SO, LET THE CURRENT YALE AND HARVARD boys look long and longingly on tomorrow's scene as they may recapture its long and lovely days when, in their turn, they came back with tangles of their own and look down on the athletes of that future day and envision them as the Strucks and Kevorkians and Hoesbergs and Franks of their youth. In their turn too, they will want the old scene to fit their fancy, forgetting what anxious impatience troubled their youth, as they had not with silver hair turned back, as the Shervins and Coys and Verweches and Mahans of yesterday.

Harvard and Yale games are played for money, which is why I am thinking of Clint Frank, whose show will be over tomorrow night and with little left for his peculiar gifts but as we mean to a pleasant dream.

Not a HEADACHE from QUANTITY

Where will you find a whiskey so entwined with Thanksgiving tradition as Wilson? Since 1823 men in all walks of life—banker and baker, merchant prince and peasant vendor—all have called upon Wilson to grace the festive table.

Wilson is the choice of those who drink for the satisfaction quality gives, not the dissatisfaction quantity brings. Wilson has always made QUALITY—one and only one fine whiskey, and that's all.

Start your feast with a Wilson cocktail. End it with a delicious Wilson bigball.

Medford-Everett School Headliner

Gilneas Unbeaten Since 1935

A usually quiet Saturday, the weekend preceding Thanksgiving Day, took up this year with a gala schoolboy football card as teams in every quarter of Greater Boston swung into action.

The program for tomorrow, after being made up for the last part of games which had been washed out earlier in the season, was a double bill. The first game was the annual examination of the Medford and Everett schools. The second was the annual examination of the Medford and Everett schools.

Schoolboy Predictions

Medford should surprise Everett with a win. Melrose in a walk, maybe, over Cambridge Latin. Malden to complete a 3-M streak of wins by whipping Haverhill. Brockton to add another victim to its list in Quins. Salem hits the win column at the expense of Newburyport. Framingham to lead off the Braves. Lynn English to down fighting Waltham. Gloucester sails through Beverly.

The best defensively in the state will have to be the Harvard team, which will have to rely on its own defense to keep the offensive forces from scoring in the Cambridge Harvard annual examination. The Medford team will have to rely on its own offense to keep the defense from scoring in the Cambridge Harvard annual examination. The Everett team will have to rely on its own defense to keep the offense from scoring in the Cambridge Harvard annual examination.

Malden Favorite Over Haverhill

A nice fact in the past two weeks has been the fact that a group of several very prominent players of the Malden team have been playing for the Haverhill team. This fact has been a surprise to many of the fans of both teams.

The Malden team has been playing very well in the past two weeks. They have won several games and are now in a good position to win the championship. The Haverhill team has also been playing very well. They have won several games and are now in a good position to win the championship.

Because anything bearing the Kennedy label must merit it both from the standpoint of inward quality as well as outward good taste. . . . It must come up to a standard of perfection before it is ticketed to meet a price level. What we particularly want to stress is that our $25 Group of Young Men's Suits and Overcoats are the product of the endeavor to offer you "more for the money" . . . and they're as fine as they are because of the Kennedy ideal behind the endeavor. BIG NEWS BROADCAST NOW GOIN ON

For y thy words thou shall be justified and by thy words thou shall be condemned.—St. Matthew XII, 37.

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Dr. Harold Major, First Baptist Church, Boston. The text for tomorrow will be suggested by the Rev. David R. Bailey, pastor of St. Stephen's Church, Fall River.

The Editor Says:

MASSACHUSETTS apparently has a law that makes its highways safe for drunken drivers who kill.

Judge John E. Swift of Superior Court brought it to light when he found not guilty of manslaughter a drunken driver whose automobile had killed a father and child.

In the same case the driver was found guilty of drunkenness, drunken driving and driving to endanger.

He was acquitted of charges of manslaughter and leaving the accident scene because, in Judge Swift's opinion, he did not know what he was doing.

The acquittal is based on law which Judge Swift interprets as requiring proof of willful, wanton and reckless conduct in a manslaughter case. The judge is quoted:

"His mind was not clear enough to appreciate what he was doing and therefore he is not guilty of the charge of manslaughter."

... to be guilty of leaving the scene of an accident, the driver must have left knowingly. He must know what he is doing at the time."

A GRAVE SITUATION

—is here brought to light—an existing condition that makes drunkenness a moratorium on severe penalty for a terrible offense. It has existed for years and whether or not it should be corrected is still a controversial question.

Its application to a case of drunken driving resulting in fatality and a sorrowed home raises many questions.

Should not a man's sober self, at least in drunken driving cases, be held responsible for his drunken self?

And should not the penalties now provided only for the man who willfully, wantonly and recklessly kills be applied to the man who willfully, wantonly and recklessly drinks and drives—and in driving kills?

If Judge Swift has correctly interpreted the law, the Legislature should give serious thought to the revision of the statutes dealing with manslaughter in drunken driving cases.

A LOOPHOLE

—for the possible escape of every drunken driver who kills may logically be opened by the defense in this case which was justified by the court's acquittal. Most drunken drivers involved in fatal accidents have maintained they were not drunk.

Under Judge Swift's finding, the safe course for them to follow, in order to escape severe penalty, is to claim drunkenness beyond the point of comprehension.

"I was too drunk to know what I was doing." Proving the contrary in a drunken driving case is difficult.

NO CRITICISM

—can be made of a judge for a finding in accordance with law on the evidence presented.

In this case, as regards acquittal on the manslaughter and leaving-the-scene charges, the law, not the court, may be at fault if laxity exists.

A police official who prosecuted the case deplores the fact that Judge Swift imposed only a suspended sentence on the convictions for drunkenness, drunken driving and driving to endanger.

So does the Boston Evening American, which believes that the punishment for every drunken driver who takes a life should be a term behind bars.

SEE ALL AMERICA

—will be an appropriate slogan for the year of 1939. It will be truly a great UNITED STATES EXPOSITION YEAR, with the cities of New York and San Francisco and the WHOLE NATION working in close harmony to give the world the most inspiring spectacle it has ever seen.

In New York City, the World's Fair of 1939 will utilize all the resources and wonders of science, education and industry to portray "The World of Tomorrow."

In San Francisco, the Golden Gate International Exposition will proclaim and honor one of the greatest engineering triumphs of human history, the double bridging of San Francisco Bay.

Between these two cities lies the ENTIRE UNITED STATES to be traversed and appreciated by the millions who will visit BOTH exhibitions.

The nation itself will thus become ONE VAST WORLD'S FAIR.

Visitors from every corner of the earth will see, not one city or one section of America, BUT OUR WHOLE NATION.

These two great exhibitions are NOT competitors. This is not a prospect into which the element of competition can properly enter.

Neither of these great exhibitions of American progress can be complete without the other. Their aim, purposes and success will be mutual. And all of us who can possibly afford this best of vacations will visit BOTH EXPOSITIONS to our profit and enlightenment.

Don't Point With Hands Full

By Nelson Harding

England, France and Russia point the forefinger of accusation at Japan.

But what are they hiding in THEIR doubled-up fists?

Hidden in England's fist is Hong-kong, a large chunk of Shanghai and "concessions" worth millions of pounds.

Hidden in France's fist is Cochinchina and a large part of Shanghai.

Hidden in Russia's fist is Outer Mongolia and two or three Northwest Provinces.

As Benjamin DeCasseres, in "March of Events," wisely observed:

"I hold no brief for Japan. What she has done to the civilian population of Shanghai, Canton and Nanking is nothing but barbaric crime—but when England, France and Russia point their fingers at Japan let them first open their hands wide and point with all five fingers."

They dare not, for they would have to drop their loot buried in their closed fists."

THOUGHTS while strolling: Something in something or other. A week named for a movie star. Mamma boys: Clifton Webb, Maury Paul, Milton Berle and Richard Watts, Jr. Ever-ready Japanese with cameras. Try smoking in their country and see what.

Add talkers through their teeth: Claude Rains and Robert Donat. Grow-up keepies: Broadway phrase: "How do you like that?" Eve Symington, once the only society case singer. But now look! Justice Black, alas, alive!

No. 1 girlish-loving grandmother: Mrs. Jay O'Brien. Babe Ruth's nickname for everybody is Butch—even Chief Justice Hughes. Tops in colorful newspaper: Gene Fowler. And I'll take the Joe Blinn orchestra for a walk with Sheila Barrett. Lionheart of the era: Prosecutor Dewey.

New free show: The funny lunchtime military at the Colony. For Gelett Burgess' look 11 years younger: Cecil B. DeMille. Two things about the Marx Brothers—you either like or can't bear them. The William Rinaldeses look like you expect someone to look.

Stokowski knots a mean nuffer, too. And not many fellows can give a silk hat that certain take like Cole Porter. Or make their white tie ends flare out just like Ronald Colman. The book critic Herschel Brickell's name sounds like a triple jump in checkers.

When Wesley W. Stout knew definitely he was to succeed the late George Horace Lorimer, he decided to brush up on his literary background before the actual duties began. He wanted to do a lot of reading and historical research, so he bought a couple of five-foot shelves, sundry biographies and reference works and shipped as a supercargo on a merchant ship for distant ports. The supercargo is a sort of purser on a freighter. He has scarcely any power, save when loading and unloading.

FORCED LANDINGS. To a golf widow, one of the many. Many a man thinks that he has taken for a ride when the actual duties began. He has been nearly tripped up and made a forced landing.

If men had shown no more dignity in these candid, humorous literature than they display in love-making, the world would still be in a state of barbarism only slightly tempered by woman.

Somehow, no matter how popular, how vain or how spoiled, it may be, our dearest man's indifference can give her an "inferiority complex" that will split the whole evening.

The old-fashioned girl used to be a woman when she wanted to get her way, but a girl would hardly be able to assert a man's heart today, with streaks of mad, mad running down her cheeks.

Human Side of the News

THE night has a thousand eyes—and it has acquired a thousand voices, since radio came. You have a touch of insomnia. You get bored counting sheep. You get up and explore the ice box; maybe a little snack will put you to sleep.

You light a cigarette, strike the cat's back and induce an ecstatic rapture. There's a dependable reaction in a world of "uncertainty relations." It is reassuring.

You do a little desultory radio dialing—perhaps just to check on the outer cosmos and see if it's still there. It's 2 o'clock in the morning. You don't get much except, perhaps, a passing squawk or bellows from a coast night club. You swing your "Star Wagon," quite as miraculously as Max Anderson's, over into the short-wave zone.

There you get all the thousand voices—vehement, strident, appealing, seductive, hymning the complacent majesty of Britain, the "pay and work" of Germany, the new "throne, powers and dominion" of resurgent Italy, and faint winds of doctrine from South America, with snatches of tangy music in-between.

It's propaganda, most of it. And there's a word which has been kicked around like an old rubber ball. The background of the word is interesting. It had an exalted beginning, in the Latin "de propaganda fide"—the propagation of the faith.

Pope Urban VIII established a "propaganda college," to educate priests for missions. The word came to be applied to "any organization for spreading a particular doctrine or system." Hence, with due allowance in our varying agreement or dissent in any particular instance, the word is aptly used.

It seems to me that many intelligent men are bad propagandists. I cite the American address of Hiroshi Asahida, clever Japanese publisher and member of Japan's inner house, which was broadcast a few nights ago.

He vehemently disclaimed any intention of spreading propaganda. Japan was motivated only by a kindly, fraternal spirit in resisting the brutal assault of China.

It sought only friendly co-operation with this great neighboring nation, and was merely disciplining a few recalcitrants who had repulsed Japan's generous advances toward brotherhood and peace.

Why can't propagandists just be honest? And wouldn't an honest propagandist be more effective than a crooked one? I believe he would, and I cite a case to prove it—related to me by an old friend who is a Washington correspondent.

I was standing in the lobby of the Cosmos Club one night, "say my friend," and was being introduced to some of the club members. A rambunctious, tousle-headed chap came hitch-hiking into the group, showing everybody aside. "Did I hear you were a newspaperman?" he said, addressing me. I told him I was, and he stepped into a fast opening. "I am a propagandist," he said, "and I want to put something over on you."

I am Congressman Maury Maverick from Texas. I've got a bill here which I believe in, and I want to make you believe in it. Maybe you won't like it, but if you do, I want you to write it up and help me get it passed.

When I see you and tell you about it? Maverick worked like that with the newspapers, never with a buried ace, and he got a full and friendly hearing for all his stuff.

Suppose foreigners now concentrating their idea-barrage on America would open like that: "I'm a propagandist, and I want to put something over on you. I want you to believe what I believe. I will tell you why and when, and then you can write your own ticket."

In other words, wouldn't that ordinary, everyday honesty help a lot in international relations?

March of Events

THE Supreme Court has ruled that the jig-saw puzzle is not a game.

The jig-saw puzzle is, in reality, a much more interesting thing than a game—it is an INTERNATIONAL SITUATION.

England, France, Russia, Germany, Italy, Poland, Austria, Hungary, Japan and China have all been fitted nicely into the picture called WAR by the rulers and cabinetiers. The jig-saw puzzle is, however, not complete. There are a few pieces missing. These pieces are over here in America. Put together, they make a picture of UNCLE SAM.

Now the whole game of the jig-saw puzzle players of the world is to lure those pieces out of America.

Then they will fit them in, hurriedly rise from the table, and start their world-war. But at present they can do nothing without Sam, his money, his prestige, his resources and his millions of young men.

The missing pieces in that puzzle ARE GOING TO STAY RIGHT HERE, if the American people have any say in the matter.

Now the ladies have a "Peking Skill." She is called Madame Sunnithrope. She can't say Madame as Madame is a bad word, being much older, maybe five hundred thousand years or so.

This skill of China's first lady was put together by Dr. Franz Neumann, director of the Rockefeller-endowed Peiping Union Medical College. It is now being exhibited at Peiping.

Dr. Weidenreich has placed the original Eve between the skull of a modern man and the skull of a gorilla. Has that some deep meaning?

It is a further curious fact that the learned doctor also knew it was the skull of a woman by the size of the jaw.

"Death—always death! What a memory I shall leave behind me if this lasts!"—Maximilien Robespierre.

Robespierre, the Stalin of the French Revolution, was talking about when he said that. His name will always be associated with bloody and ruthless regimes—such as exist today in Russia mainly, and to a lesser degree in Germany, Italy and Spain.

Robespierre is one of the most curious situations in fanatical idealism which exist. This wholesale murderer was, when a young prosecuting attorney in Aix, against capital punishment. He was called "the incorruptible." He combated the Atcham of the French Revolution and ordered, on the 8th of June, 1794, the Festival of the Supreme Being in Paris. Two or three later the festival of French abolitionists witnesses in trials before the revolutionary tribunal. He just lined them up and sent them to the guillotine.

In 46 days he sent 1255 people to their death in Paris, and thousands in other French cities and towns. His own head was taken off by his enemies on the 27th of July, 1794. That was the end of Robespierre.

"Republic of Virtue" was his ideal. "Ideological" (a man-with-a-system-at-any-price, a fanatical "planner").

The world today is being overrun with these "ideological" monsters.

Listen, World!

I USED to think of opportunity as something outside one's self—

A lucky break. A special chance. Something that came knocking at the door—

And I waited for it to come knocking at nine. But it didn't come. Or, if there was a knock, it was some hobo whom that brought me nothing, took me nowhere.

Day after dark day passed. Where was my One Big Moment, that every human is promised?

I waited . . . watched. Grew bitter waiting. Why didn't Lady Luck come?

Then gradually, through sheer necessity, I began to figure things out. Began to see that my expectations had been wrong from the beginning.

I had been thinking of Opportunity as an outside thing. Something that came to you. BUT OPPORTUNITY WASN'T AN OUTSIDE ARRANGEMENT.

IT WAS AN INSIDE ATTITUDE.

Opportunity didn't come from someone else . . . didn't just happen. OPPORTUNITY WASN'T LUCK. IT WAS A STATE OF MIND, an opening of your own heart, a widening of your own imagination, a quickening of your own will.

The people whom I saw having luck were actually making that luck, themselves, by their own state of mind. They weren't just WAITING for it—they were WILLING. They were opening themselves to luck.

AND IF YOU HAVE AN ATTITUDE LIKE THAT, ANYTHING IS BOUND TO BE

LUCK THAT COMES YOUR WAY.

That doesn't mean that you always get what you expect or want . . . or that you always recognize your chances when you find them. But it does mean that you are not on a winning streak.

FOR IF YOUR HEART IS OPEN AND YOUR MIND IS AWAKE AND YOUR WILL IS ALL SET TO GO, YOU CAN TURN ANYTHING TO ACCOUNT . . . FIND PROFIT OR PLEASURE OR ADVENTURE ANY WAY YOU CHOOSE.

I didn't learn all this quickly or easily. I wasn't born lucky. I didn't get to be a happy start. And besides, I was naturally all kinds of an idiot. There were years when I seemed hell bent for misery . . . when all the breaks were bad coming.

But I wanted luck. I studied lucky people. I tried to see how they got that way. I was envious at first, bitter and jealous. I thought such people must be Teacher's Pets. But I couldn't hang on to such a nasty notion as that. It just didn't fit the facts.

They weren't Teacher's Pets. They didn't have rare and unusual chances. But they were ready, inside themselves, for luck. They were willing to pay the price of luck—which is often mighty steep.

You can't lick people like that. You can't take their luck from them . . . nor keep their Opportunity from them. They carry their Opportunity right with them . . . inside them . . . all set.

Just as you can carry YOURS . . . START-ING NOW!
